

BLACK VELVET

VOL. I

ISSUE IV

THE MAGAZINE FOR ARTISTS AND PHOTOGRAPHERS

There are few subjects more interesting or more challenging to photograph than a beautiful woman. In figure photography more than a pretty face is needed, good coordination, poise and the ability to pose gracefully. Only the very fortunate photographer finds all these qualities in his model. All this plus the never-ending search for new and interesting props to add variety to his photographs make the job of figure photography far from easy.

In this book we attempt to present a visual and technical guide to better photography. We hope you will use this book as a posing guide and that it will help you with professional lighting techniques.

adds femininity to these candid photos of Barbara Jackson

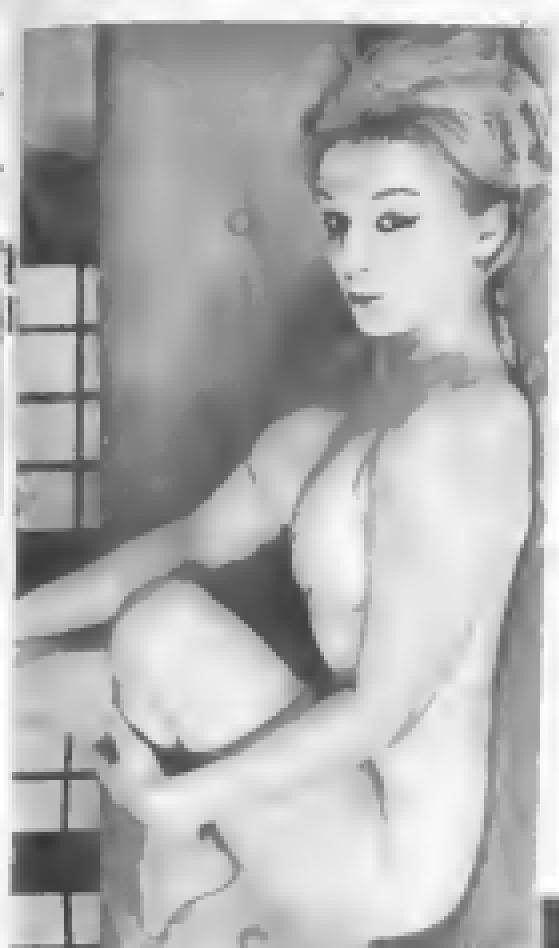

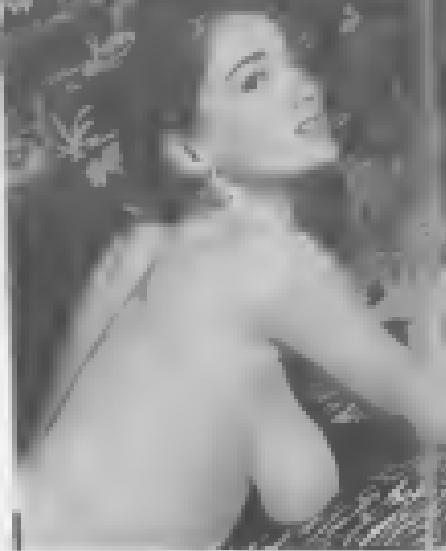

Props are ever important to the figure photographer; screens are important as they offer a quick way to change the mood of the photograph. Here we see a modern white screen with a cascade of colored ribbon tacked onto it. In this issue you will see other types of screens and various ways to use them. Model: Penny Foster, 4x5 speed graphic with banks of flood lights for controlled lighting.
